

Declaration by parents or legal guardians regarding the exchange of information between primary school and secondary school

Every child goes through individual development and learning phases, which begin at home and are then supported and promoted by school work. Primary school and secondary school have a joint responsibility to ensure the continuity of the development and learning processes of the child. In addition to developing of the overall personality of your child, the teachers of the primary school are also familiar with its special abilities and skills. In order to ensure the best possible transition for your child, it is beneficial that the primary school forwards important information about your child to the secondary school during the transition between primary school and secondary school. This allows the secondary school to make an individual development plan for your child early in grade 5. This information can only be passed for the child with your permission.
